

The Madison Chapter of the Association for Women in Communications (AWC) welcomes:

Dee J. Hall
Award-winning reporter

“Uncovering the Caucus Scandal”

Thursday, Nov. 16

The Edgewater Hotel at 666 W. Wisconsin Ave.; free parking onsite in ramp Networking & registration 11:30 a.m.; lunch & program 12:00-1:00 p.m.

Have you ever wondered what it would really be like to unearth a scandal involving higher ups? Dig in as Dee Hall candidly shares details of how she, along with fellow State Journal reporter Phil Brinkman, did just that. Hear how they uncovered one of the biggest political scandals in our state’s history. The stories showed that dozens of staffers worked illegally on private campaigns at the direction of their bosses, the leaders of the Legislature. Five lawmakers and four aides were sentenced or fined in the ensuing criminal investigation. The series garnered a number of state, regional, and national awards.

Dee Hall has been a reporter with the Wisconsin State Journal for 15 years. Prior to that, she wrote for the Arizona Republic newspaper in Phoenix for eight years. Since 1991, she has received numerous journalism awards for investigative reporting as well as spot news reporting. Her award-winning work includes articles which deal with living with mental illness and stories about land-use issues.

Get down to the nitty-gritty and discover the complete story behind the story. Find out more about the ins and outs of investigative reporting. Please bring a friend or business associate to hear Dee Hall tell it like it is November 16. All are welcome to attend this event.
